

Diversity, Equity, Inclusion

The Foundation for Impact on Literacy and Learning (FILL) offers K12 educational course materials and programs through partnerships with donor organizations. All programs and materials are available to all students without regard to race, color, national origin, gender, sexual orientation, creed, religion or disability. FILL actively seeks to offer its activities to all student populations. FILL values and promotes diversity, equity and inclusion in our membership, our leadership, and in each program.

Our community of more than 15,000 participants includes students, teachers, counselors, club advisors, parents and other educators from diverse geographic, demographic, racial, and ethnic backgrounds in public schools, private schools, home schools, after school clubs, and where students gather in a learning community.

All students are encouraged to participate in FILL programs through their teacher or club adviser. The inspiring stories of our programs, such as Lead4Change and Panasonic Eco Citizenship, show the strength of student diversity, access and inclusion from urban, suburban and rural areas, and equitable solutions across all student populations. We stand committed to continuing this legacy of giving all students an equal opportunity to engage and learn at no cost.

The Foundation has, since 2003, offered all lessons, resources and recognition free of charge to any and all students in the US because of the generous grants from donors.
